

When I moved to Kelowna 2 $\frac{1}{2}$ years ago, there were two things I wanted to accomplish right away, First; find a home church for my kids and I. Second: find a place to help my new community. God blessed both desires. I found a great church first time out, and found a great place to volunteer first call made.

My job at the Kelowna Gospel Mission is to make sandwiches and serve lunch every Friday. I come to serve and try to be a blessing to others, but there are many times that I am the one who receives the blessing. A heart felt "Thank You" or the sharing of a quick story at the lunch counter can bring such revelation to what matters most. It's never a chore; it's always a privilege.

Like the people I get to work with every week, it's why I come back. It's a privilege to work with Volunteers and Employees who have such servant hearts. If you've never volunteered for something before or it's been a long time, think about visiting the Kelowna Gospel Mission, it's blessed my life!
